Here are a few points to keep in mind.

No one retiring before July 1 will $80, perhaps a $50 or so a month. ever get a social security pension larger than $68.50. Since a wife's pension is half that of her husband, the maximum for a couple retiring before July 1 will always be $102.75.

For that reason many people presently self-employed could retire now at 65 and draw a pension based on the credits they acquired in those years when they worked as employes.

But a number of those now selfemployed never were under social security until January 1, 1951. They can't retire and get a pension until they've built up enough social security credits.

Many Cases Differ

The period between January 1, 1951-when the self-employed first came under social security-and July 1, 1952, is 18 months, or six quarters. A person with no previous coverage needs 18 months of it to get a pension.

CONGRESS ASKS LOBBY GROUP TO

By STERLING F. GREEN Washington, Feb. 21 (A)-Some members of Congress did an unusual thing this week. They urged a disbanding lobby, an admitted pressure group, to stay in business. The lobby is the Citizens' Committee for the Hoover Report. Its goal is better and cheaper govern-

The committee plans to break up on May 31. A non-partisan body, it feels it cannot survive the election campaign without getting involved in the political crossfire.

Formed In 1949

The committee was organized in 1949 to lobby for the approval of the government-reform proposals of the 12-member, bi-partisan Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch.

500 committeemen:

That commission quickly became known as the Hoover Commission. Its chairman, former President Herbert Hoover, said that in taking leadership he was performing his "last public service."

Sent to Congress in bulky installments three years ago, the Hoover report was an attic-tobasement survey of the ramshackle federal structure and an item-byitem blueprint for modernizing it.

The Citizens' Committee, voluntarily and privately supported, came of your efforts. You have been a into being when the Hoover Commission completed its work and closed up shop.

Its Scope To Date

The committee's sole aim was to see that the Hoover report did not suffer the fate of earlier reform efforts-which still are gathering dust in congressional pigeon holes.

Numerically, the committee has won adoption of 55 per cent of the individual Hoover recommendations. In terms of dollars saved, it claims about two billions annually, against a potential saving of 51/2 billions a year if all the proposals became law. Actually, the easier parts of the program have been accomplished. The hard ones, bitterly contested by other pressure groups and sidetracked by the more compelling considerations of defense, seem to have hit a road block. Final Big Push
